

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When an access from an intruder is detected, a destination rewriting section 441 of a converting section 44 rewrites a destination [regular] which has been registered in an access command [http.../regular/doc] to a directory [decoy] of a decoy region 42. A communication application 43 accesses the decoy region 42 designated by the access command. A response converting section 442 of the converting section 44 rewrites a response [success/decoy/doc] returned from the communication application 43 to the content [success/regular/doc] expressing a message where the access to the regular region 41 has been succeeded.